

Olympic and Economy

Tokyo Olympic will hold in 2021. Japanese think Japanese`s economy may be getting better. However, I claim that Japanese economy may be getting worse by the Tokyo Olympic. It is often said that holding Olympic is evolve economy. This is not the truth. The fact is serious. Well, how Japan`s economy is getting better. This paper focuses on the best way to making Japanese economy better using the Tokyo Olympic.

Japanese economy may be getting worse by the Tokyo Olympic. According to research of economic growth rate, most country economy growth rate become lower. However, only America`s economy growth rate become higher. According to article, America had sufficient infrastructures, so America doesn`t need much money for infrastructures. On the other hand, the rest of the host countries need to set up their infrastructures, which costs a lot of money.

Will the Olympics in Tokyo make the economy worse? Will be described. In fact, the Tokyo Olympics were held in 1964. The economy was booming due to the large number of highways, bullet trains, and accommodation facilities. However, a year later, the construction industry went bankrupt and fell into recession. However, it did not end here, and attention was focused on Japan, and a booming economy called the Izanagi economy came. For example, cars, air conditioners, color TVs. Considering these points, I think that the Tokyo Olympics will cause a temporary recession, but by enlivening the Olympics, it will attract attention and may lead to a boom

It turned out that it is important for the Olympic Games to attract attention and make a profit by attracting customers and importing and exporting by raising the excitement at the venue so that it does not necessarily bring about a recession. to achieve this, I thought it was important to disseminate information using media and SNS, and to use existing equipment as much as possible.
